

Call for papers BSGLG 71 (2018/2)

Spatiality and Governance

Thematic issue

You are invited to submit a paper proposal for the next thematic issue of BSGLG which will bring together original contributions devoted to the relationship between spatiality and governance.

The proposals will focus on the spatial aspects of institutional reforms (territorial recompositions) and governance rescaling, on the link between territorial development models and governance, on the spatial selectivity of governance processes, on the interactions between governance and the construction of spatiality, on the spatial governance of smart and sustainable cities, etc.

Contributions may be based on theoretical, methodological or empirical research, at all scales (from local to global) and for all territories (urban and rural).

Researchers from all disciplines (geography, regional sciences, urban planning, political sciences, etc.) are invited to submit proposals that address the relationships between spatiality and governance processes. Contributions can be submitted in English or French.

An internationally recognized scientific journal

The journal BSGLG has an international peer committee and evaluates proposals through a double-blind peer-reviewed process. The quality of this process and the high quality of papers published in BSGLG are the reason why our journal is indexed in Scopus and FRANCIS (EBSCO), recognized by AERES (French Agency for the Evaluation of Research), and supported by the FNRS (Belgian National Foundation for Scientific Research) and the J.A. Sporcck Foundation (ULg).

Become part of a scientific project

When authors publish papers in BSGLG, they contribute to a scientific project which gives a visibility to original publications in all geographical fields. In addition, they give their support to knowledge diffusion for all through an open-access strategy. This is a unique opportunity to establish contacts and to enhance local and international research collaborations with experts in geography.

A scientific journal welcoming proposals of young researchers

The editorial board invites especially young researchers and doctoral students to submit papers in order to present significant progress in their research. These proposals will be evaluated through the same process and with the same quality requirements. However, the editorial board will first of all consider the ways reviews of experts will be transmitted and will also give advice on paper improvement.

Deadlines for proposals submission

15.07.2018 Introduction of full proposals by mail to the editor (christophe.breuer@uliege.be)

15.12.2018 Publication of BSGLG 71 (2018/2)

All proposals should respect author guidelines available on our website (www.bsglg.be).

An open-access journal

BSGLG is both published on hard copies (subscription) and online (free access). Since 2014, more than 500 papers have been fully available online. They are indexed by many search engines which enhance their visibility. The submission of proposals and the consultation of papers are completely free of charge. This is our contribution to geographical researches and our belief in quality knowledge for all.

More information

www.bsglg.be

Dr. Christophe BREUER, editor
Pr. Jean-Marie HALLEUX, editor
University of Liège
Clos Mercator, 3 (B11)
4000 Liège (BELGIUM)

christophe.breuer@uliege.be

Geographical Society of Liège